Use Denatured Alcohol

Those who have occasion to use alcohol for burning or any mechanical or industrial purpose should remember that as a result of the new national law, denatured grain alcohol can now be had at a price which makes it an object to use instead of wood alcohol. Denatured alcohol is pure grain alcohol to which a small amount of wood alcohol and certain chemicals have been added so as to make it unfit for drinking purposes or medicinal use. We can supply any quantity. Price: 25c. per pint.

HON. E. S. RATLIFF.

Making Good as State Representative.—Not Only Introduces Good Bills, but Secures Their Passage.

House bill No. 246 by E. S. Ratliff, making it a misdemeanor to abandon, or wilfully neglect to provide for the support and maintenance by any person, of his wife, his or her minor children in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and to provide penalties for violation thereof.

Be it enacted by the people of the State of Oklahoma:

Section 1. That every person who shall without good cause, abandon his wife, and neglect and refuse to maintain and provide for her, or any person who shall abandon his or her minor child or children, under the age of twelve years, in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and wilfully neglect or refuse to maintain or provide for such child or children, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail, not less than one year nor more than two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and should a fine be imposed it shall be paid into the court for the benefit of the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the minor child, or children; provided, that before the trial (with consent of the defendant) or after conviction instead of imposing the punishment hereinbefore provided, or in addition thereto, the court in its discretion, having regard to the circumstances and financial ability of the defendant, shall have the power to make an order which shall be subject to change by it from time to time as circumstances may require, directing the defendant to pay a certain sum weekly to the wife, guardian, or custodian of the child or children and to release the defendant from custody on probation, during the term of imprisonment prescribed upon his entering into a recognizance with two good and sufficient sureties in double the amount of the fine imposed, payable to the justice of the peace, or county judge before whom the accused is tried or to be tried.

The conditions of the recognizance shall be such that if the defendant shall make his personal appearance in court whenever ordered to do so by the court during the suspension of the sentence prescribed and shall further comply with the terms of the order, then the recognizance shall be void, otherwise to be in full force and effect. If the court be satisfied by information and due proof, under such oath, that at any time during the suspension of sentence that the defendant has violated the terms of such order, the court may forthwith proceed with the trial of the defendant under the original indictment or information, or sentence him under the original conviction, as the case may be. In case of forfeiture of recognizance thereof by execution, the sum recovered shall be paid to the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the child or children.

Section 2. No other evidence shall be required to prove the marriage of such husband and wife, or that such person is the lawful father or mother of such child or children, than is or shall be required to prove said facts in a civil action, and such wife shall be a competent witness to testify in any case under this act, and to any and all matters relevant thereto, including the fact of such marriage and parentage of such child or children.

Section 3. All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Dispensaries Seventy-Nine.

Guthrie, Ok., March 27.—Oklahoma will have as a "starter" seventy-nine dispensaries or local agencies, created under the prohibition bill recently signed by Gov. Haskell, for the sale of liquors for medicinal purposes. The bill provides that one dispensary shall be located in each town of 2,000 inhabitants. According to the special Federal census of 1907 there are thirty-five counties which possess no town of the required population. Fifteen of these are in what was formerly Oklahoma Ter. They are Alfalfa, Beaver, Blaine, Custer, Cimarron, Dewey, Ellis, Harper, Grant, Jackson, Major, Pawnee, Roger Mills, Texas and Washita. On the Indian Territory side there are Adair, Atoka, Cherokee, Delaware, Haskell, Le Flore, Love, McCurtain, McIntosh, Marshall, Mayes, Okfuskee, Ottawa, Seminole, Sequoyah and Pushmataha.

Four counties will get two agencies by reason of having two towns of 2,000 people and over. They are Blackwell and Ponca City, in Kay county; Coalgate and Lehigh, in Coal county; Pauls Valley and Wynnewood, in Garvin county, and Hartshorne and McAlester, in Pittsburg county. The other towns of 2,000 people and over where the State will locate one dispensary, providing the 1907 census is followed, are Elk City, Anadarko, El Reno, Norman, Lawton, Enid, Mangum, Kingfisher, Durant, Ardmore, Hugo, Vinita, Sapulpa, Chickasha, Purcell, Sulphur, Hobart, Muskogee, Chandler, Guthrie, Perry, Oklahoma City, Pawhuska, Stillwater, Shawnee, Alva, Frederick, Woodward, Nowata, Okmulgee, Ada, Claremore, Duncan, Tulsa, Wagoner and Bartlesville.

Sale of School Lands Meets With Opposition.

Guthrie, Okla., March 27.—That any bill for the sale of the school lands will meet with determined opposition in the senate was made evident today during the debate on the Durant bill from the house, providing for the reappraisal of the school lands in accordance with the request of the governor, which opened up the entire range of the school land question for discussion.

The bill provided for the extension of leases expiring before April 15 of this year to January 1, 1909. The members of the school land board had taken the position that new leases could not be made without extending them for three years and asked this law as a temporary expedient.

The New School.

Profs. Fentem and Liner, of Stonewall, and Prof. Norton, of Roff, are all here today preparing for the opening of the Oklahoma Commercial school in the Henley & Biles building Monday. From time to time during the last few weeks we have had something to say in regard to this school. These gentlemen are not strangers nor have they come here to spring a fake enterprise on the people of Ada. They are coming here in good faith to build up a first-class school—one of which they and the citizens of Ada may be proud.

While the school which they expect to maintain here will in a short while equal in a financial way to Ada to a manufacturing plant employing twenty-five to forty men, they have not asked anything of Ada except patronage.

My aim and ambition is to be the "Leader for Fashionable Clothing." For this season I have added to my other well established lines, the best advertised known lines for the well dressed young men, the "Senior Brand" College Clothes.

$16.50 TO $25

These suits are made in all the correct styles. Many original models in all the fashionable fabrics for spring wear are now here for your inspection.

The fashion fabrics in sack suits are brown, olive, smoke, gray and blue cassimeres, chevots and worsteds in soft stripes, plaids and checks, also in black, blue and gray serges.

The coats are cut slightly shaped to the form and close, with 2 or 3 buttons. The vests have fancy cut flaps. The pants are made with two flaps over the pockets, long cuffs at the bottom; the widths are semi and full peg.

The Senior Brand College Clothing are the clothing for the young man of good taste.

age. This of itself is enough to show that they are in earnest. They will bring their families as soon as they can get houses in which to live.

To the young men and ladies of Ada and the surrounding country we would say you will no longer be under the necessity of going away from home, at great expense, to acquire a business training—for it can now be had in your home town—and equal to the best

Our plant at 14th street and Frisco railroad will continually grow as the season advances. Forms for new work will arrive almost daily after April 5th. Ada Construction Co.

Entered as second-class mail matter March 26 1904 at the postoffice at Ada, Oklahoma, under the act of Congress March 3, 1879.

Congratulated.

Ada is to be congratulated on nominating a set of men for city officials that will stand for a better city government. Honesty in office should be the test by which every official should stand or fall and from the past record of the men nominated at Ada last week no doubts are entertained of their making good.—Francis Wigwam.

Clean Up.

Ada should have a clean-up day. The streets should be riden of everything that is unsightly, and the alleys cleared of everything that is unclean. Other towns are cleaning up; many that are smaller and less progressive than Ada. What say ye?

Bailey Day in Fort Worth.

Today is Bailey day in Fort Worth, Texas. It is estimated that 30,000 people from all over Texas are attending the rally and convention in which Bailey men will be nominated as candidates before the special primary for delegates to the Denver convention.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak Kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is scanty, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other distressing or dangerous Kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative's mouth-Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggists recommend and sell.

The merchants of the city signed an agreement Monday to close their places of business each evening at 7 o'clock. This is following out the custom established many years ago in this city.

Invitations have been received in Ada from Mr. and Mrs. John F. McReynolds, of Paris, Texas, announcing the marriage of their daughter Miss Clara Roba and Mr. Thomas P. Holt, of Ada. The ceremony is to take place on Wednesday, April 8th, at the home of the parents of the bride. In conjunction with the numerous friends of Mr. Holt in Ada, the News tenders most hearty congratulations as well as extends to the fair bride-to-be a cordial welcome to our city.

LIGHT VOTE.

Democratic Ticket and City of First Class Will Win.

There is considerable interest being manifested in the election today as the report become current that opposition to the city of the first-class was evident. This caused some uneasiness and there was some lively pushing done this afternoon. There is little doubt, however, but that the regular ticket and the city of the first-class proposition will win out.

At 3:30 p. m. the vote by wards stood as follows: First ward, 126; Second ward, 57; Third ward, 94; Fourth ward, 133.

Catholic Services.
Father Glynn of Holdenville, will conduct Catholic services Gray, Sunday at 8:00 a. m. All Gray, Sunday at 8:00 a. m. All are invited.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bedwetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W., South Bend, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

Wm. A. Radford
EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 194 Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A neat little affair, just big enough for two, may be built on this plan for about $900, and it is well worth the money. Very small houses nowadays must have bathrooms. People are cleaner than they used to be, and I believe they are getting more particular all the time. At any rate I notice that houses without improvements go a-begging, while modern conveniences will sell or rent a house even when the location is not especially desirable.

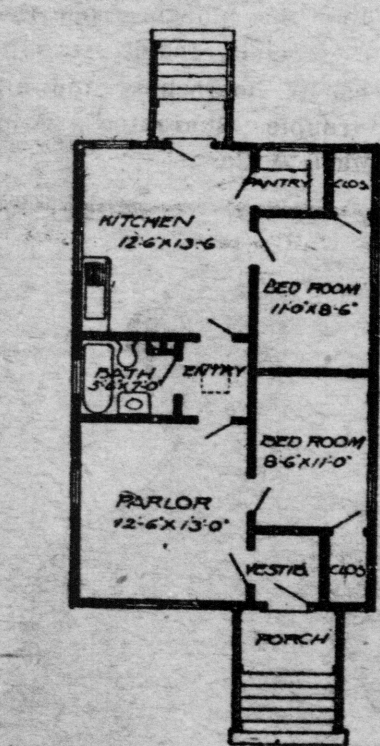

Hot running water in a house has come to be a necessity, but it is also a luxury; something more we have to thank science for that our great-grandparents knew nothing about. Thirty years ago houses supplied with hot water were known only to the rich, but now anyone who has ambition enough to want to be clean may have hot running water and a porcelain bath to turn it into. The porcelain bathtub also is a recent invention. As late as ten years ago a zinc-lined wooden box was considered desirable and sufficiently up-to-date, but now all bathroom furniture must be of porcelain or porcelain-lined, as hard and smooth as glass, so they may be easily cleaned.

Recent improvements in plumbing supplies have reduced the cost of hot and cold water fittings in houses by cutting off corners in different directions. All fittings and connections are now cut by machinery to standard sizes, and attachments to washstands, closets and bathtubs are manufactured by the million, so that the only thing necessary is to put in the proper washers to prevent leaks and to screw them fast and connect with the water supply and the sewer. It makes the plumber's job an easy one and quickly done.

The kitchen in this little plan is made large, because it is also the dining room. A hundred years ago the very best Americans were not too proud to cook and eat in the same room, but lumber was cheap and the next generation found out how to build larger houses. Some of the women killed themselves taking care of them, but while they lived they had a different room for several social functions and after they died they didn't need them. The large house habit has followed down pretty well to the present time, but a change is coming in our kitchen arrangements and the gas range is largely responsible for it. There is very little heat from a gas stove and some of the better ones are very nicely designed with high ovens and warm cupboards.

When women commenced to cook with gas they were afraid of it and they never could keep things hot until ready to serve, and these were two very serious objections, but these troubles have been righted by degrees until the gas stove now has more friends than the upright piano. With a neat two-story gas range in a good kitchen like this a small family can manage very nicely without a dining room. They can imagine themselves living in the last century if they want to, but the fact is a good many houses are being built at the present time in which the cooking and eating must be done in one and the same room.

This also helps to solve the cottage or bungalow question. A great many city women are accustomed to living in flats. They have learned to like the plan of having all the rooms on one floor. It saves climbing up and down stairs, but the difficulty has always been to get rooms enough. You cannot spread out very far in a flat and you cannot spread a cottage house very wide without running into considerable expense. This is what led architects to turn back about a hundred years to first principles and restate the combination dining room and kitchen.

This plan as drawn does not provide for a cellar, but there is no objection to having a good cellar put under this little house at any time, for the house is well worth it.

The little front vestibule should be furnished with a good-sized hat rack. There is room for it on the side opposite the front stair and it will be found very useful for hanging overcoats. There should be an underneath part to hold extra articles of clothing, such as overshoes, leggings, gloves and a whole lot of things that you haven't room for in a little house like this, unless you provide something of this kind. There are many ways to manage in close quarters that people living in large houses never think about. One of the first lessons to learn is that you do not need as much as your neighbors have got in their large houses.

DROPPED IN TO SEE SPEAKER.

Little One's Visit Temporarily Stopped Legislative Wheels.

The official business of the speaker of the house of representatives was suspended for 15 minutes recently, and anxious statesmen had to cool their heels in the hall while "Uncle Joe" entertained little Miss Pauline Douthitt, eight years old, of Springfield, Ill.

The speaker was busy at his desk about two o'clock in the afternoon, and Neyle, the messenger, was asleep at the switch when the door of "Uncle Joe's" private sanctum opened and a petite young lady entered the room. Dignified and important lawmakers had to send in their cards, but Miss Pauline did not observe that formality. Mr. Cannon looked up in astonishment.

"Are you Uncle Joe?" asked the little girl.

"That's what some of the boys call me," said the speaker.

"Well," continued Miss Pauline, "I want to see you—I want to see what you look like. My mamma and papa would not bring me down here, so I fooled them and ran away. I am from Springfield."

"Great goodness, child, you did not come all the way from Illinois to see me, did you? Why, your daddy will be scared to death if you have run away from home."

"Oh, they are at the Raleigh hotel. I will get back by the time they miss me. I just could not help coming to see you."

Speaker Cannon blushed and looked as pleased as a boy with a new sled. He put Miss Pauline in the chair of honor and found her as bright and sharp as a pin. She told him she wanted him to be president, and talked politics like a real congressman.

"By jingo," exclaimed the speaker, "you the the brightest little girl I ever say. Busby, hand me one of my photographs—one of the big ones." And then the speaker wrote at the bottom of the picture: "From 'Uncle Joe' to his Valentine."

Miss Pauline tied up the transaction of business for a quarter of an hour and the committee on rules had to wait. Then a messenger escorted her back to the hotel.—Boston Herald.

NAVY THEN AND NOW

THE DAYS OF WOODEN SHIPS AND SMOOTH-BORES.

Just as Strongly as in These Days American Sailors Were Confident They Could Whip Any Other Nation.

Lieut. Commander E. A. Anderson, on recruiting duty, recently described his naval experiences to newspaper men of Cincinnati, and showed the great change which has been made within his experience. Few of the men in the navy to-day realize the great difference of every-day conditions of naval life.

"With our old wooden ships and our smooth-bore guns we felt we could lick the whole world when I entered the navy," said Lieut. Commander Anderson. "All the ships in our navy were wooden at that time, with the exception of a few monitors. The European squadron consisted of the Pensacola, Kearsarge and the Quaker-baug. Admiral Dewey was captain of the Pensacola at that time. It makes me feel like I'm an old salt to call to mind the kind of ships and guns we had in those days. There were 25 men to a gun crew then, and it required all of them to haul the old smooth-bores about."

"After they had been fired the men had to haul them back inside the ship to reload. Then they had to push them out again so the guns could be fired. It required about five minutes to pivot a gun from one side to the other, when training it on some object, and I don't know how long it required to load one of them. Well, I remember our broadside batteries of old nine-inch smooth-bores. Why, when we got our first rifled guns, two six-pounders, we again thought we could lick anything afloat. We used them for some time for firing salutes only. Our old ships were rotten. In those days we used large hemp ropes to counteract the recoil of the guns after they had been fired, but to-day we have the most modern recoil apparatus known to naval experts."

"I can remember very well that when the navy department prepared to construct what was known as 'The White Squadron,' consisting of the Chicago, the Atlanta and the Dolphin, now the secretary of the navy's yacht, there was the greatest protest from some authorities because they were to be made of steel instead of wood. With our old vessels we thought we were fairly flying when we steamed four knots an hour on speed tests. Our engines were forced to their utmost capacity to make that speed, I guess, for our decks danced up and down at a frightful rate. And our ammunition—it makes me laugh when I think of it. We used to fire away at targets with our old nine-inch smooth-bores over what are now short ranges. We could hit the mark all right, and we were proud of it. But it is amusing now to think how our shells would turn and twist and roll while making their flight. They didn't look anything like our modern shells, which make their flight in the same position as that in which they lie in the gun, business end foremost. But those were good old days."—The Blue Jacket.

Dartmouth Tale Revived.

Awake ago an item started the rounds of the college papers, beginning, it appeared, with the Daily Illini, at the University of Illinois, and working like a soft-nosed bullet both ways through the college publications. The story was about what was called a recent happening at Dartmouth. It detailed how the tax assessor of the district of Hanover, N. H., decided recently that the students of Dartmouth college ought to pay taxes. Thereupon the students decided that if they could be taxed they also could vote.

So at a town meeting the students, who far outnumbered the other residents, united in support of two projects. One was to have erected a schoolhouse 500 feet long and one foot wide, and the other to have laid a boardwalk from Hanover to Lebanon about five miles away. Immediately thereafter the tax assessor made up his mind that the students need not be taxed.

"Well," said a Dartmouth '95 man when he was told about the anecdote, "that used to be a favorite story when I was in college. I wonder who started that up again."

Progress in China.

No feature of modern China is more remarkable than the growth of the native press. Dr. Morrison, who is perhaps the best authority on this subject, says that every city now of any importance has its newspaper, there being about 200 journals boldly conducted and publishing Reuter telegrams and other messages from European agencies, so that tens of thousands of Chinese could now read every day of the progress and reforms of Europe, and of all the most stirring events in distant parts of the world. They even have their political cartoons, showing considerable ingenuity and invention.

LEVINSKY HAD GREAT SCHEME.

Bright Idea He Thought Meant Saving of Twenty-Five Dollars.

Levinisky, despairing of his life, made an appointment with a famous specialist. He was surprised to find 15 or 20 people in the waiting-room. After a few minutes he leaned over to a gentleman near him and whispered, "Say, mine friend, this must be a pretty good doctor, ain't he?" "One of the best," the gentleman told him.

Levinisky seemed to be worrying over something.

"Vell, say," he whispered again, "he must be pretty expensive, then, ain't he? Vat does he charge?"

The stranger was annoyed by Levinisky's questions and answered rather shortly: "Fifty dollars for the first consultation and $25 for each visit thereafter."

"Mine Gott!" gasped Levinisky, "$50 tollars the first time and $25 tollars each time afterwards!"

For several minutes he seemed undecided whether to go or to wait. "Und $25 each time afterwards," he kept muttering. Finally, just as he was called into the office, he was seized with a brilliant inspiration. He rushed toward the doctor with outstretched hands.

"Hello, doctor," he said effusively. "Vell, here I am again."—Everybody's Magazine.

Tarantula Not So Bad.

The terrible tarantula is said to be more abused than abusive. It is not aggressive upon man nor is it often intrusive even, although every old miner and prospector has shaken one out of his boots or blankets in the morning, and always the size of a saucer. It avoids the hot sunshine and remains well down in its burrow under the ground. About sundown it sallies forth and lies in waiting just below the opening of the burrow. It assumes this position whether it desires food or wishes only to get a bit of fresh air. It does not travel about in quest of food, even when hungry, but remains quietly in the attitude described often for hours at a time. At the near approach of a caterpillar, grasshopper, beetle or almost any creature of like size, other than its enemy, the wasp, it rushes out and seizes it, but rarely goes farther than a few inches from the opening. One fair-sized insect a week is sufficient to satisfy its hunger because of its inactive existence, while it can live several months without food, even when most active, provided it has water. In autumn the spider closes the entrance with a crudely-spun web. It is then ready to pass the winter in a semi-lethargic state, partaking of no food. In the spring it digs its way out.

A Jefferson Davis Speech.

On August 2, 1870, a party of young men engaged a band and serenaded Jefferson Davis. After the band had played "Dixie" and "My Maryland," Mr. Davis spoke these words:

"My friends, I thank you for this cordial greeting. Thrown like a wave on a restive ocean, it is something to receive this good old Virginia welcome. As long as my heart continues to beat it must be still responsive to the warm and cordial feeling of Virginians, which I have experienced in some of the contingencies of my life. This manifestation of your good feeling towards me comes from your generosity, and not from any merit of my own. May God in his infinite mercy preserve you from every ill, and may your prosperity and happiness be as wide as your borders—may your homes be peaceful, is the earnest prayer of one who has no more to say to you on this occasion."—Eugene L. Didier in Spare Moments.

Durability of Glass.

It does not seem odd to find inscriptions written ages ago still visible on the Tower of London, or on the steeple of some cathedral, but one would hardly look on a fragile panel of glass in a common window for characters 200 years old.

A notable case in point is that of the old house in London wherein the notorious Jack Sheppard once lived as a carpenter's apprentice. One of the window panes still bears an inscription cut in it by a glazier's diamond, recording the name and address of a man who preceded Jack's master in that house.

The inscription is: "John Woolley Brand, Painter and Glazier, March 12, 1706."

That was nine years before the coming to the house of the famous Jack Sheppard, and over 200 years ago.—Sunday Magazine.

Not a Bad Idea.

"Did you write to Flippin's," said Mrs. Nuvoe Reeshe, "for samples of all the latest style visiting cards?"

"Yes, madam," replied the secretary. "About 100 came—all sorts and sizes."

"What names were on them?" Mrs. Nuvoe Reeshe inquired eagerly.

"The very first families of the city, madam."

The matron smiled contentedly.

"Then dump 'em all," she said, "in the gold card receiver on the parlor table."

Severely Practical.

"Oh, promise me that some day you and I will take our love together to that sky—" sang one of the boarders in our boarding house, sentimentally, Sunday evening in the parlor.

"You'll have to buy an airship, Mr. Pipes, won't you?" asked little Tommie Smith in all seriousness.

The Season's Modes

COSTUMES FOR EARLY SPRING

One of the late and sensible Parisian ideas in tailored costumes is the attaching by the tailor of a narrow belt matching the skirt to the skirt itself. Sometimes these are stitched all the way around, closing where the skirt closes under a pointed end or other suitable termination, and sometimes, but more rarely, they are fastened on one side only so that the belt may be closed in the front or at the side, while the skirt's opening is in the back. This fashion was in vogue there a year or so ago, and many women adhered to it, or their tailors did, but others who would have looked far better with it went in for belts and girdles of all sorts. Now, however, that Parisians are having the belt of the material on their smartest street costumes, one will be sure to see it here.

The narrow belt of the gown material is far more becoming to the short-waisted or large-waisted person than the fancy belt, whether of leather, ribbon, belting, or any of the numerous varieties that are always wider and far more clumsy. The narrow belt is so much more becoming to the slender figure, and few are so long-waisted that they need object to the narrow waistband. However, it is easy to have the belt made an inch wider, and that makes a very considerable difference in one's apparent length of waist. Of course, the extremely short-waisted person that is short-waisted in proportion to her height and width, should eschew any sort of girdle so far as possible, and the ideal finish is no visible belt, but the skirt finished so it will not stretch, and a narrow cord or straight fold not over an eighth of an inch wide at the top, this being straight. This is almost never seen, so few women have the originality and common sense to choose what is suitable.

Short sleeves are still to obtain considerable favor. On walking dresses I find this a great pity, for the short sleeves in coats have my distinct and definite hatred. I realize that they spoil the outline of the figure, that they are as indiscriminately worn by the woman who has an ill-shaped arm as by the woman who has the well-shaped arm, while I am content to gloss over the fact that long gloves are among the involved essential extravagances. I am by no means satisfied that the short sleeve has any becoming virtue to commend it.

Greek outlines are being revived, including embroidered tunics, the draped sleeve for evening wear, and the crossed and folded bodice. The empire style continues meanwhile—and I hope much longer—to enjoy generous patronage, and of the making of silver and golden trimmings dully burnished for the most part there is no end.

Many of the new hats are draped with veils of plain Russian net. Innocent of border or binding, and these thrown back to form a frame for the hair, must be voted infinitely attractive.

Plain cloth puts a better face on it than ever, and undoubtedly by merit retains its first position, though many shades of dull yellow and dull green are endeavoring to obtain recognition, and should not be encouraged, for they do not possess the supreme attractiveness of becomingness. A costume for immediate wear which has considerable charm is in dull blue with a long coat, cut into panels under each arm and down the center of the back, and outlined with an embroidery of dull silver cord, the panels being held together with straps of the silver. This coat, which is of full three-quarter length, hangs quite straight from the shoulders, and is turned back in front with small white silk revers traced with silver, the sleeves terminating just below the elbow and being of the modified bell shape; the skirt is quite plain and short, its only adornment being a very narrow trimming of the dull silver cord about three inches from the hem.

The skirts are growing narrower. The slim long outline is essential to the success of the newest cloth gown, and the skirt which touches the ground at the back is to enjoy as much popularity as the straight round skirt.

The embroidered waistcoat is to have considerable influence on the spring costume, light cloth and light watered silk will be called to its service, and its most attractive shape will be that which we associate with the cavalier coat and the lace cravat and the sleeve ruffle. Waistcoats are also made of fanciful brocade, and some of tapestry are novel, while the Oriental embroideries are not banished from recognition, although they have occupied the pedestal of popular favor for some four seasons.

The corset skirt looks extremely well cut in very fine cloth or serge, and obviates any possible untidiness round the waist, or necessity for belt or band. As an admirable suggestion for a costume I quote a traveling friend of mine who proposes to buy for herself a corset skirt of fine black cloth, the hem showing a Grecian design in black braid, with a white lawn shirt with lace-edged lawn frills from neck to bust, and putting finishing touches to the long sleeves. The long waistcoat has a seam round the waist, and is made of tapestry brocade, the coat also being cut straight, with a seam round the waist, and braided down on either side with small pendant ornaments. The lining of this coat is to be of the same brocade as the waistcoat and the hat is to be of black, the shape turning up slightly in front with a mass of eagle's feathers at one side, the crown encircled with a plaited galon of dull silver interwoven with black and tasseled with silver.

Making Good as State Representative.—Not Only Introduces Good Bills, but Secures Their Passage.

House bill No. 246 by E. S. Ratliff, making it a misdemeanor to abandon, or wilfully neglect to provide for the support and maintenance by any person, of his wife, his or her minor children in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and to provide penalties for violation thereof.

Be it enacted by the people of the State of Oklahoma:

Section 1. That every person who shall without good cause, abandon his wife, and neglect and refuse to maintain and provide for her, or any person who shall abandon his or her minor child or children, under the age of twelve years, in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and wilfully neglect or refuse to maintain or provide for such child or children, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction therefor shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail, not less than one year nor more than two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and should a fine be imposed it shall be paid into the court for the benefit of the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the minor child, or children; provided, that before the trial (with consent of the defendant) or after conviction instead of imposing the punishment hereinbefore provided, or in addition thereto, the court in its discretion, having regard to the circumstances and financial ability of the defendant, shall have the power to make an order which shall be subject to change by it from time to time as circumstances may require, directing the defendant to pay a certain sum weekly to the wife, guardian, or custodian of the child or children and to release the defendant from custody on probation, during the term of imprisonment prescribed upon his entering into a recognizance with two good and sufficient sureties in double the amount of the fine imposed, payable to the justice of the peace, or county judge before whom the accused is tried or to be tried.

The conditions of the recognizance shall be such that if the defendant shall make his personal appearance in court whenever ordered to do so by the court during the suspension of the sentence prescribed and shall further comply with the terms of the order, then the recognizance shall be void, otherwise to be in full force and effect. If the court be satisfied by information and due proof, under such oath, that at any time during the suspension of sentence that the defendant has violated the terms of such order, the court may forthwith proceed with the trial of the defendant under the original indictment or information, or sentence him under the original conviction, as the case may be. In case of forfeiture of recognizance thereof by execution, the sum recovered shall be paid to the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the child or children.

Section 2. No other evidence shall be required to prove the marriage of such husband and wife, or that such person is the lawful father or mother of such child or children, than is or shall be required to prove said facts in a civil action, and such wife shall be a competent witness to testify in any case under this act, and to any add all matters relevant thereto, including the fact of such marriage and parentage of such child or children.

Section 3. All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Dispensaries Seventy-Nine.

Guthrie, Ok., March 27.—Oklahoma will have as a “starter” seventy-nine dispensaries or local agencies, created under the prohibition bill recently signed by Gov. Haskell, for the sale of liquors for medicinal purposes. The bill provides that one dispensary shall be located in each town of 2,000 inhabitants. According to the special Federal census of 1907 there are thirty-five counties which possess no town of the required population. Fifteen of these are in what was formerly Oklahoma Ter. They are Alfalfa, Beaver, Blaine, Custer, Cimarron, Dewey, Ellis, Harper, Grant, Jackson, Major, Pawnee, Roger Mills, Texas and Washita. On the Indian Territory side there are Adair, Atoka, Cherokee, Delaware, Haskell, LeFlore, Love, McCurtain, McIntosh, Marshall, Mayes, Okfuskee, Ottawa, Seminole, Sequoyah and Pushmataha.

Four counties will get two agencies by reason of having two towns of 2,000 people and over. They are Blackwell and Ponca City, in Kay county; Coalgate and Lehigh, in Coal county; Pauls Valley and Wynnewood, in Garvin county, and Hartsborne and McAlester, in Pittsburg county. Sale of School Lands Meets With Opposition.

Guthrie, Okla., March 27.—That any bill for the sale of the school lands will meet with determined opposition in the senate was made evident today during the debate on the Durant bill from the house, providing for the reappraisal of the school lands in accordance with the request of the governor, which opened up the entire range of the school land question for discussion. The bill provided for the extension of leases-expiring before April 15 of this year to January 1, 1909. The members of the school land board had taken the position that new leases could not be made without extending them for three years and asked this law as a temporary expedient.

The New School.

Profs. Fentem and Linc, of Stonewall, and Prof. Norton, of Roff, are all here to lay preparing for the opening of the Oklahoma Commercial school in the Henley & Biles building Monday. From time to time during the last few weeks we have had something to say in regard to this school. These gentlemen are not strangers nor have they come here to spring a fake enterprise on the people of Ada. They are coming here in good faith to build up a first-class school—one of which they and the citizens of Ada may be proud.

While the school which they expect to maintain here will in a short while equal in a financial way to Ada to a manufacturing plant employing twenty-five to forty men, they have not asked anything of Ada except patronage.

My aim and ambition is to be the “Leader for Fashionable Clothing.” For this season I have added to my other well established lines, the best advertised known lines for the well dressed young men, the “Senior Brand” College Clothes.

Our plant at 14th street and Frisco railroad will continually grow as the season advances. Forms for new work will arrive almost daily after April 5th. Ada Construction Co.

Congratulated

Ada is to be congratulated on nominating a set of men for city officials that will stand for a better city government. Honesty in office should be the test by which every official should stand or fall and from the past record of the men nominated at Ada last week no doubts are entertained of their making good—Francis Wigwam.

Clean Up

Ada should have a clean-up day. The streets should be rid of everything that is unsightly, and the alleys cleared of everything that is unclean. Other towns are cleaning up, many that are smaller and less progressive than Ada. What say ye?

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidneys. The kidneys, like the heart, and the lungs, are the most important organs of the body, but in the nerves that control and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the kidneys is to doctor the whole system. It is a waste of time, and of money, to try to cure the kidneys by other means. If your back aches or is weak, if the urine is cloudy, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other diseases of the kidneys, or if you are generally run down, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month. It will cure you. Druggists recommend and sell.

Wm. A. Radford

EDITOR

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer he is without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 84 Fifth Ave. Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A neat little affair, just big enough for two may be built on this plan for about $900, and it is well worth the money. Very small houses nowadays must have bathrooms. People are cleaner than they used to be, and I believe they are getting more particular all the time. At any rate I notice that houses without improvements go a begging, while modern conveniences will sell or rent a house even when the location is not especially desirable.

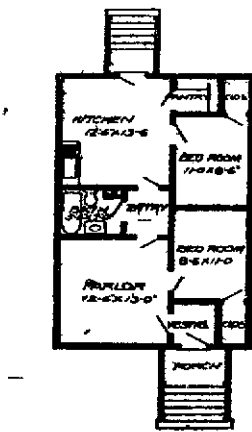

Hot running water in a house has come to be a necessity, but it is also a luxury, something more we have to thank science for that our great-grandparents knew nothing about. Thirty years ago houses supplied with hot water were known only to the rich, but now anyone who has ambition enough to want to be clean may have hot running water and a porcelain bath to turn it into. The porcelain bathtub also is a recent invention. As late as ten years ago a zinc-lined wooden box was considered desirable and sufficiently up-to-date, but now all bathroom furniture must be of porcelain or porcelain-lined as hard and smooth as glass so they may be easily cleaned.

Recent improvements in plumbing supplies have reduced the cost of hot and cold water fittings in houses by cutting off corners in different directions. All fittings and connections are now cut by machinery to standard sizes, and attachments to washstands, closets and bathtubs are manufactured by the million so that the only thing necessary is to put in the proper washers to prevent leaks and to screw them fast and connect with the water supply and the sewer. It makes the plumber's job an easy one and quickly done.

The kitchen in this little plan is made large, because it is also the dining room. A hundred years ago the very best Americans were not too proud to cook and eat in the same room, but lumber was cheap and the next generation found out how to build larger houses. Some of the women killed themselves taking care of them, but while they lived they had a different room for several social functions and after they died they didn't need them. The large house habit has followed down pretty well to the present time, but a change is coming in our kitchen arrangements and the gas range is largely responsible for it. There is very little heat from a gas stove and some of the better ones are very nicely designed with high ovens and warm cupboards.

When women commenced to cook with gas they were afraid of it and they never could keep things hot until ready to serve, and these were two very serious objections, but these troubles have been righted by degrees until the gas stove now has more needs than the upright piano. With a neat two-story gas range in a good kitchen like this a small family can manage very nicely without a dining room. They can imagine themselves living in the last century if they want to, but the fact is a good many houses are being built at the present time in which the cooking and eating must be done in one and the same room.

This also helps to solve the cottage or bungalow question. A great many city women are accustomed to living in flats. They have learned to like the plan of having all the rooms on one floor. It saves climbing up and down stairs, but the difficulty has always been to get rooms enough. You can not spread out very far in a flat and you cannot spread a cottage house very wide without running into considerable expense. This is what led architects to turn back about a hundred years to first principles and reinstate the combination dining room and kitchen.

This plan as drawn does not provide for a cellar, but there is no objection to having a good cellar put under this little house at any time, for the house is well worth it.

The little front vestibule should be furnished with a good sized hat rack. There is room for it on the side opposite the front stair and it will be found very useful for hanging overcoats. There should be an underneath part to hold extra articles of clothing such as overshoes, leggings, gloves and a whole lot of things that you haven't room for in a little house like this, unless you provide something of this kind. There are many ways to manage in close quarters that people living in large houses never think about. One of the first lessons to learn is that you do not need as much as your neighbors have got in their large houses.

DROPPED IN TO SEE SPEAKER.
Little One's Visit Temporarily Stopped Legislative Wheels.

The official business of the speaker of the house of representatives was suspended for 15 minutes recently, and anxious statesmen had to cool their heels in the hall while "Uncle Joe" entertained little Miss Pauline Douthitt, eight years old, of Springfield, Ill.

The speaker was busy at his desk about two o'clock in the afternoon, and Neyle, the messenger, was asleep at the switch when the door of "Uncle Joe's" private sanctum opened and a petite young lady entered the room. Dignified and important law makers have to send in their cards, but Miss Pauline did not observe that formality. Mr. Cannon looked up in astonishment.

"Are you Uncle Joe?" asked the little girl.
"That's what some of the boys call me," said the speaker.
"Well," continued Miss Pauline, "I want to see you—I want to see what you look like. My mamma and papa would not bring me down here, so I fooled them and ran away. I am from Springfield."

"Great goodness, child, you did not come all the way from Illinois to see me, did you?" Why, your daddy will be scared to death if you have run away from home."

"Oh, they are at the Raleigh hotel. I will get back by the time they miss me. I just could not help coming to see you."

Speaker Cannon blushed and looked as pleased as a boy with a new sled. He put Miss Pauline in the chair of honor and found her as bright and sharp as a pin. She told him she wanted him to be president, and talked politics like a real congressman.

"By Jingo," exclaimed the speaker, "you are the brightest little girl I ever saw. Busby, hand me one of my photographs—one of the big ones." And then the speaker wrote at the bottom of the picture: "From 'Uncle Joe' to his Valentine."

Miss Pauline tied up the transaction of business for a quarter of an hour and the committee on rules had to wait. Then a messenger escorted her back to the hotel.—Boston Herald.

NAVY THEN AND NOW

THE DAYS OF WOODEN SHIPS AND SMOOTH-BORES.

Just as Strongly as in These Days American Sailors Were Confident They Could Whip Any Other Nation.

Lieut. Commander E. A. Anderson, on recruiting duty, recently described his naval experiences to newspaper men of Cincinnati, and showed the great change which has been made within his experience. Few of the men in the navy to-day realize the great difference of everyday conditions of naval life.

"With our old wooden ships and our smooth bore guns we felt we could lick the whole world when I entered the navy," said Lieut. Commander Anderson. "All the ships in our navy were wooden at that time with the exception of a few monitors. The European squadron consisted of the Penelope, Kearsarge and the Quilmore. Admiral Dewey was captain of the Pensacola at that time. It makes me feel like 'I am an old salt' to call to mind the kind of ships and guns we had in those days. There were 25 men to a gun crew then, and it required all of them to haul the old smooth bores about."

"After they had been fired the men had to haul them back inside the ship to reload. Then they had to push them out again so the guns could be fired. It required about five minutes to pivot a gun from one side to the other when training it on some object, and I don't know how long it required to load one of them. Well, I remember our broadside batteries of old nine-inch smooth bores. Why, when we got our first rifled guns, two six pounders, we again thought we could lick anything afloat. We used them for some time for firing salutes only. Our old ships were rotten. In those days we used large hemp ropes to counteract the recoil of the guns after they had been fired but to day we have the most modern recoil apparatus known to naval experts."

"I can remember very well that when the navy department prepared to construct what was known as The White Squadron, consisting of the Chicago, the Atlanta and the Dolphin, now the secretary of the navy's yacht, there was the greatest protest from some authorities because they were to be made of steel instead of wood. With our old vessels we thought we were fairly flying when we steamed four knots an hour on speed tests. Our engines were forced to their utmost capacity to make that speed, I guess for our decks danced up and down at a frightful rate. And our ammunition—it makes me laugh when I think of it. We used to fire away at targets with our old nine-inch smooth bores over what are now short ranges. We could hit the mark all right, and we were proud of it. But it is amusing now to think how our shells would turn and twist and roll while making their flight. They didn't look anything like our modern shells, which make their flight in the same position as that in which they lie in the gun, business end foremost. But those were good old days.—The Blue Jacket

Dartmouth Tale Revived.

A while ago an item started the rounds of the college papers, beginning it appeared, with the Daily Illini, at the University of Illinois, and working like a soft-nosed bullet both ways through the college publications. The story was about what was called a receipt happening at Dartmouth. It detailed how the tax assessor of the district of Hanover, N. H., decided recently that the students of Dartmouth college ought to pay taxes. Thereupon the students decided that if they could be taxed they also could vote.

So at a town meeting the students, who far outnumbered the other residents, united in support of two projects. One was to have erected a schoolhouse 500 feet long and one foot wide and the other to have laid a boardwalk from Hanover to Lebanon about five miles away. Immediately thereafter the tax assessor made up his mind that the students need not be taxed.

"Well," said a Dartmouth '95 man when he was told about the anecdote, "that used to be a favorite story when I was in college. I wonder who started that up again."

Progress in China.

No feature of modern China is more remarkable than the growth of the native press. Dr. Morrison, who is perhaps the best authority on this subject, says that every city now of any importance has its newspaper, there being about 200 journals boldly conducted and publishing Reuter telegrams and other messages from European agencies, so that tens of thousands of Chinese could now read every day of the progress and reforms of Europe, and of all the most stirring events in distant parts of the world. They even have their political cartoons, showing considerable ingenuity and invention.

LEVINSKY HAD GREAT SCHEME.

Bright Idea He Thought Meant Saving of Twenty-Five Dollars.

Levinsky, despairing of his life, made an appointment with a famous specialist. He was surprised to find 15 or 20 people in the waiting-room. After a few minutes he leaned over to a gentleman near him and whispered, "Say, mine friend, this must be a pretty good doctor, ain't he?" "One of the best," the gentleman told him.

Levinsky seemed to be worrying over something. "Well, say," he whispered again, "he must be pretty expensive, then, ain't he?" "Vat does he charge?"

The stranger was annoyed by Levinsky's questions and answered rather shortly: "Fifty dollars for the first consultation and $25 for each visit thereafter."

"Mine Gott!" gasped Levinsky, "$50 tollars the first time and $25 tollars each time afterwards?"

For several minutes he seemed undecided whether to go or to wait. "Und $35 each time afterwards," he kept muttering. Finally, just as he was called into the office he was seized with a brilliant inspiration. He rushed toward the doctor with outstretched hands.

"Hello doctor," he said effusively. "Vell, here I am again.—Everybody's Magazine

Tarantula Not So Bad.

The terrible tarantula is said to be more abused than abusive. It is not aggressive upon man nor is it often intrusive even, although every old miner and prospector has shaken one out of his boots or blankets in the morning, and always the size of a saucer. It avoids the hot sunshine and remains well down in its burrow under the ground. About sundown it sallies forth and lies in waiting just below the opening of the burrow. It assumes this position whether it desires food or wishes only to get a bit of fresh air. It does not travel about in quest of food, even when hungry, but remains quietly in the attitude described often for hours at a time. At the near approach of a caterpillar grasshopper, beetle or almost any creature of like size other than its enemy, the wasp, it rushes out and seizes it, but rarely goes farther than a few inches from the opening. One fair sized insect a week is sufficient to satisfy its hunger because of its inactive existence, while it can live several months without food, even when most active, provided it has water. In autumn the spider closes the entrance with a crudely-spun web. It is then ready to pass the winter in a semi-lethargic state, partaking of no food. In the spring it digs its way out.

A Jefferson Davis Speech.

On August 2, 1870, a party of young men engaged a band and serenaded Jefferson Davis. After the band had played "Dixie" and "My Maryland," Mr. Davis spoke these words:

"My friends, I thank you for this cordial greeting. Thrown like a wave on a restive ocean, it is something to receive this good old Virginia welcome. As long as my heart continues to beat it must be still responsive to the warm and cordial feeling of Virginians, which I have experienced in some of the contingencies of my life. This manifestation of your good feeling towards me comes from your generosity, and not from any merit of my own. May God in his infinite mercy preserve you from every ill, and may your prosperity and happiness be as wide as your borders—may your homes be peaceful, is the earnest prayer of one who has no more to say to you on this occasion"—Eugene L. Didier in Spare Moments

Durability of Glass.

It does not seem odd to find inscriptions written ages ago still visible on the Tower of London, or on the steeples of some cathedrals, but one would hardly look on a fragile panel of glass in a common window for characters 200 years old.

A notable case in point is that of the old house in London wherein the notorious Jack Sheppard once lived as a carpenter's apprentice. One of the window panes still bears an inscription cut in it by a glazier's diamond, recording the name and address of a man who preceded Jack's master in that house.

The inscription is "John Woolley Brand, Painter and Glazier, March 12, 1708."

That was nine years before the coming to the house of the famous Jack Sheppard, and over 200 years ago.—Sunday Magazine

Not a Bad Idea.

"Did you write to Flippany's," said Mrs. Nuvvee Reeshe "for samples of all the latest style visiting cards?"

"Yes, madam," replied the secretary. "About 100 came—all sorts and sizes."

"What names were on them?" Mrs. Nuvvee Reeshe inquired eagerly.

"The very first families of the city, madam."

The matron smiled contentedly. "Then dump 'em all," she said, "in the gold card receiver on the parlor table."

Severely Practical.

"Oh, promise me that some day you and I will take our love together to that sky—" sang one of the boarders in our boarding house, sentimentally Sunday evening in the parlor. "You'll have to buy an alrump, Mr. Pipes, won't you?" asked little Tommie Smith in all seriousness.

The Season's Modes

COSTUMES FOR EARLY SPRING

One of the late and sensible Parisian ideas in tailored costumes is the attaching by the tailor of a narrow belt matching the skirt to the skirt itself. Sometimes these are stitched all the way around, closing where the skirt closes under a pointed end or other suitable termination, and sometimes but more rarely they are fastened on one side only so that the belt may be closed in the front or at the side, while the skirt's opening is in the back. This fashion was in vogue there a year or so ago, and many women adhered to it, or their tailors did, but others who would have looked far better with it went in for belts and girdles of all sorts. Now, however, that Parisians are having the belt of the material on their smartest street costumes, one will be sure to see it here.

The narrow belt of the gown material is far more becoming to the short waisted or large-waisted person than the fancy belt, whether of leather, ribbon, belting, or any of the numerous varieties that are always wider and far more clumsy. The narrow belt is so much more becoming to the slender figure, and few are so long-waisted that they need object to the narrow waistband. However, it is easy to have the belt made an inch wider, and that makes a very considerable difference in one's apparent length of waist. Of course, the extremely short waisted person that is short waisted in proportion to her height and width, should eschew any sort of girdle so far as possible, and the ideal finish is no visible belt; but the skirt finished so it will not stretch, and a narrow cord or straight fold not over an eighth of an inch wide at the top, this being straight. This is almost never seen, so few women have the originality and common sense to choose what is suitable.

Short sleeves are still to obtain considerable favor. On walking dresses I find this a great pity, for the short sleeves in coats have my distinct and definite hatred. I realize that they spoil the outline of the figure, that they are as indiscriminately worn by the woman who has an ill-shaped arm as by the woman who has the well-shaped arm, while I am content to gloss over the fact that long gloves are among the involved essential extravagances I am by no means satisfied that the short sleeve has any becoming virtue to commend it.

Greek outlines are being revived, including embroidered tunics, the draped sleeve for evening wear, and the crossed and folded bodice. The empire style continues meanwhile—and I hope much longer—to enjoy generous patronage, and of the making of silver and golden trimmings duly burnished for the most part there is no end.

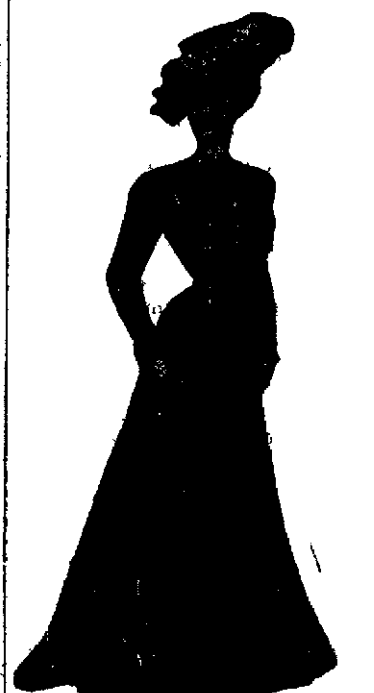

Many of the new hats are draped with yells of plain Russian net lancet of border or binding, and these thrown back to form a frame for the hair, must be voted infinitely attractive.

Plain cloth puts a better face on it than ever, and undoubtedly by merit retains its first position, though many shades of dull yellow and dull green are endeavoring to obtain recognition, and should not be encouraged, for they do not possess the supreme attractiveness of becomingness. A costume for immediate wear which has considerable charm is in dull blue with a long coat, cut into panels under each arm and down the center of the back, and outlined with an embroidery of dull silver cord, the panels being held together with straps of the silver. This coat, which is of full three-quarter length, hangs quite straight from the shoulders, and is turned back in front with small white silk revers traced with silver, the sleeves terminating just below the elbow and being of the modified bell shape; the skirt is quite plain and short, its only adornment being a very narrow trimming of the dull silver cord about three inches from the hem.

The skirts are growing narrower. The slim long outline is essential to the success of the newest cloth gown, and the skirt which touches the ground at the back is to enjoy as much popularity as the straight round skirt.

The embroidered waistcoat is to have considerable influence on the spring costume, light cloth and light watered silk will be called to its service, and its most attractive shape will be that which we associate with the cavalier coat and the lace cravat and the sleeve ruffle. Waistcoats are also made of fanciful brocade, and some of tapestry are novel, while the Oriental embroideries are not banished from recognition, although they have occupied the pedestal of popular favor for some four seasons.

The corset skirt looks extremely well cut in very fine cloth or serge, and obviates any possible untidiness round the waist, or necessity for belt or band. As an admirable suggestion for a costume I quote a travelling friend of mine who proposes to buy for herself a corset skirt of fine black cloth, the hem showing a Grecian design in black braid, with a white lawn skirt with lace-edged lawn frills from neck to bust, and putting finishing touches to the long sleeves. The long waistcoat has a seam round the waist, and is made of tapestry brocade, the coat also being cut straight, with a seam round the waist, and braided down on either side with small pendant ornaments. The lining of this coat is to be of the same brocade as the waistcoat and the hat is to be of black, the shape turning up slightly in front with a mass of eagle's feathers at one side, the crown encircled with a plaited galon of dull silver interwoven with black and tasseled with silver.

Making Good as State Representative.—Not Only Introduces Good Bills, but Secures Their Passage.

House bill No. 246 by E. S. Ratliff, making it a misdemeanor to abandon, or wilfully neglect to provide for the support and maintenance by any person, of his wife, his or her minor children in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and to provide penalties for violation thereof.

Be it enacted by the people of the State of Oklahoma:

Section 1. That every person who shall without good cause, abandon his wife, and neglect and refuse to maintain and provide for her, or any person who shall abandon his or her minor child or children, under the age of twelve years, in destitute or necessitous circumstances, and wilfully neglect or refuse to maintain or provide for such child or children, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction therefor shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail, not less than one year nor more than two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment; and should a fine be imposed it shall be paid into the court for the benefit of the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the minor child, or children; provided, that before the trial (with consent of the defendant) or after conviction instead of imposing the punishment hereinbefore provided, or in addition thereto, the court in its discretion, having regard to the circumstances and financial ability of the defendant, shall have the power to make an order which shall be subject to change by it from time to time as circumstances may require, directing the defendant to pay a certain sum weekly to the wife, guardian, or custodian of the child or children and to release the defendant from custody on probation, during the term of imprisonment prescribed upon his entering into a recognizance with two good and sufficient sureties in double the amount of the fine imposed, payable to the justice of the peace, or county judge before whom the accused is tried or to be tried.

The conditions of the recognizance shall be such that if the defendant shall make his personal appearance in court whenever ordered to do so by the court during the suspension of the sentence prescribed and shall further comply with the terms of the order, then the recognizance shall be void, otherwise to be in full force and effect. If the court be satisfied by information and due proof, under such oath, that at any time during the suspension of sentence that the defendant has violated the terms of such order, the court may forthwith proceed with the trial of the defendant under the original indictment or information, or sentence him under the original conviction, as the case may be. In case of forfeiture of recognizance thereof by execution, the sum recovered shall be paid to the wife, or to the guardian or custodian of the child or children.

Section 2. No other evidence shall be required to prove the marriage of such husband and wife, or that such person is the lawful father or mother of such child or children, than is or shall be required to prove said facts in a civil action, and such wife shall be a competent witness to testify in any case under this act, and to any and all matters relevant thereto, including the fact of such marriage and parentage of such child or children.

Section 3. All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

Dispensaries Seventy-Nine.

Guthrie, Ok., March 27.—Oklahoma will have as a "starter" seventy-nine dispensaries or local agencies, created under the prohibition bill recently signed by Gov. Haskell, for the sale of liquors for medicinal purposes. The bill provides that one dispensary shall be located in each town of 2,000 inhabitants. According to the special Federal census of 1907 there are thirty-five counties which possess no town of the required population. Fifteen of these are in what was formerly Oklahoma Ter. They are Alfalfa, Beaver, Blaine, Custer, Cimarron, Dewey, Ellis, Harper, Grant, Jackson, Major, Pawnee, Roger Mills, Texas and Washita. On the Indian Territory side there are Adair, Atoka, Cherokee, Delaware, Haskell, Le Flore, Love, McCurtain, McIntosh, Marshall, Mayes, Okfuskee, Ottawa, Seminole, Sequoyah and Pushmataha.

Four counties will get two agencies by reason of having two towns of 2,000 people and over. They are Blackwell and Ponca City, in Kay county; Coalgate and Lehigh, in Coal county; Pauls Valley and Wynnewood, in Garvin county, and Hartshorne and McAlester, in Pittsburg county. The other towns of 2,000 people and over where the State will locate one dispensary, providing the 1907 census is followed, are Elk City, Anadarko, El Reno, Norman, Lawton, Enid, Mangum, Kingfisher, Durant, Ardmore, Hugo, Vinita, Sapulpa, Chickasha, Purcell, Sulphur, Hobart, Muskogee, Chandler, Guthrie, Perry, Oklahoma City, Pawhuska, Stillwater, Shawnee, Alva, Frederick, Woodward, Nowata, Okmulgee, Ada, Claremore, Duncan, Tulsa, Wagoner and Bartlesville.

Sale of School Lands Meets With Opposition.

Guthrie, Okla., March 27.—That any bill for the sale of the school lands will meet with determined opposition in the senate was made evident today during the debate on the Durant bill from the house, providing for the reappraisal of the school lands in accordance with the request of the governor, which opened up the entire range of the school land question for discussion.

The bill provided for the extension of leases-expiring before April 15 of this year to January 1, 1909. The members of the school land board had taken the position that new leases could not be made without extending them for three years and asked this law as a temporary expedient.

The New School.

Profs. Fentem and Limer, of Stonewall, and Prof. Norton, of Roff, are all here to lay preparing for the opening of the Oklahoma Commercial school in the Henley & Biles building Monday. From time to time during the last few weeks we have had something to say in regard to this school. These gentlemen are not strangers nor have they come here to spring a fake enterprise on the people of Ada. They are coming here in good faith to build up a first-class school—one of which they and the citizens of Ada may be proud.

While the school which they expect to maintain here will in a short while equal in a financial way to Ada to a manufacturing plant employing twenty-five to forty men, they have not asked anything of Ada except patronage.

Ada Evening News.

Geo B. Weaver, Editor and Owner.

Entered as second-class mail matter March 28 1904, at the postoffice at Ada, Oklahoma, under the act of Congress March 3, 1879.

Congratulared

Ada is to be congratulated on nominating a set of men for city officials that will stand for a better city government. Honesty in office should be the test by which every official should stand or fall and from the past record of the men nominated at Ada last week no doubts are entertained of their making good—Francis Wigwam.

Clean Up

Ada should have a clean-up day. The streets should be riden of everything that is unsightly, and the alleys cleared of everything that is unclean. Other towns are cleaning up, many that are smaller and less progressive than Ada. What say ye?

Bailey Day in Fort Worth.

Today is Bailey day in Fort Worth, Texas. It is estimated that 30,000 people from all over Texas are attending the rally and convention in which Bailey men will be nominated as candidates before the special primary for delegates to the Denver convention.

At 7 45 p. m., an old-time Methodist evangelist service will be held. You cannot afford to miss it. The singing will be inspiring. Come and hear Mrs. Atkins and Capt. Minnes sing. Their songs are full of the old time gospel that is ever new.

Captain Atkins will hold three street services tomorrow, 9:30 a. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Everybody invited and welcomed in this revival.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these organs and strengthen them. To doctor the kidneys is to build up the whole system. THE AMERICAN HOME

Wm. A. Radford
Editor.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF CHARGE on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer he is without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 14 Fifth Ave. Chicago, Ill., and no enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

A neat little affair, just big enough for two may be built on this plan for about $900, and it is well worth the money. Very small houses nowadays must have bathrooms. People are cleaner than they used to be, and I believe they are getting more particular all the time. At any rate I notice that houses without improvements go a begging, while modern conveniences will sell or rent a house even when the location is not especially desirable.

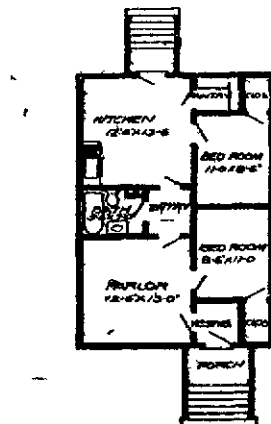

Hot running water in a house has come to be a necessity, but it is also a luxury, something more we have to thank science for that our great grand parents knew nothing about. Thirty years ago houses supplied with hot water were known only to the rich but now anyone who has ambition enough to want to be clean may have hot running water and a porcelain bath to turn it into. The porcelain bathtub also is a recent invention. As late as ten years ago a zinc lined wooden box was considered desirable and sufficiently up-to-date, but now all bathroom furniture must be of porcelain or porcelain lined as hard and smooth as glass so they may be easily cleaned.

Recent improvements in plumbing supplies have reduced the cost of hot and cold water fittings in houses by cutting off corners in different directions. All fittings and connections are now cut by machinery to standard sizes, and attachments to washstands, closets and bathtubs are manufactured by the million so that the only thing necessary is to put in the proper washers to prevent leaks and to screw them fast and connect with the water supply and the sewer. It makes the plumber's job an easy one and quickly done.

The kitchen in this little plan is made large, because it is also the dining room. A hundred years ago the very best Americans were not too proud to cook and eat in the same room, but lumber was cheap and the next generation found out how to build larger houses. Some of the women killed themselves taking care of them, but while they lived they had a different room for several social functions and after they died they didn't need them. The large house habit has followed down pretty well to the present time, but a change is coming in our kitchen arrangements and the gas range is largely responsible for it. There is very little heat from a gas stove and some of the better ones are very nicely designed with high ovens and warm cupboards.

When women commenced to cook with gas they were afraid of it and they never could keep things hot until ready to serve, and these were two very serious objections, but these troubles have been righted by degrees until the gas stove now has more than the upright piano. With a neat two-story gas range in a good kitchen like this a small family can manage very nicely without a dining room. They can imagine themselves living in the last century if they want to, but the fact is a good many houses are being built at the present time in which the cooking and eating must be done in one and the same room.

This also helps to solve the cottage or bungalow question. A great many city women are accustomed to living in flats. They have learned to like the plan of having all the rooms on one floor. It saves climbing up and down stairs, but the difficulty has always been to get rooms enough. You can not spread out very far in a flat and you cannot spread a cottage house very wide without running into considerable expense. This is what led architects to turn back about a hundred years to first principles and reinstate the combination dining room and kitchen.

This plan as drawn does not provide for a cellar, but there is no objection to having a good cellar put under this little house at any time, for the house is well worth it.

The little front vestibule should be furnished with a good sized hat rack. There is room for it on the side opposite the front stair and it will be found very useful for hanging overcoats. There should be an underneath part to hold extra articles of clothing such as overcoats, leggings, gloves and a whole lot of things that you haven't room for in a little house like this, unless you provide something of this kind. There are many ways to manage in close quarters that people living in large houses never think about. One of the first lessons to learn is that you do not need as much as your neighbors have got in their large houses.

DROPPED IN TO SEE SPEAKER.

Little One's Visit Temporarily Stopped Legislative Wheels.

The official business of the speaker of the house of representatives was suspended for 15 minutes recently, and anxious statesmen had to cool their heels in the hall while "Uncle Joe" entertained little Miss Pauline Doubtless, eight years old, of Springfield, Ill.

The speaker was busy at his desk about two o'clock in the afternoon, and Neyle, the messenger, was asleep at the switch when the door of "Uncle Joe's" private sanctum opened and a petite young lady entered the room. Dignified and important law makers have to send in their cards, but Miss Pauline did not observe that formality. Mr. Cannon looked up in astonishment.

"Are you Uncle Joe?" asked the little girl.

"That's what some of the boys call me," said the speaker.

"Well," continued Miss Pauline, "I want to see you—I want to see what you look like. My mamma and papa would not bring me down here, so I fooled them and ran away. I am from Springfield."

"Great goodness, child, you did not come all the way from Illinois to see me, did you? Why, your daddy will be scared to death if you have run away from home."

"Oh, they are at the Raleigh hotel. I will get back by the time they miss me. I just could not help coming to see you."

Speaker Cannon blushed and looked as pleased as a boy with a new sled. He put Miss Pauline in the chair of honor and found her as bright and sharp as a pin. She told him she wanted him to be president, and talked politics like a real congressman.

"By jingo," exclaimed the speaker, "you are the brightest little girl I ever saw. Busy, hand me one of my photographs—one of the big ones." And then the speaker wrote at the bottom of the picture, "From 'Uncle Joe' to his Valentine."

Miss Pauline tied up the transaction of business for a quarter of an hour and the committee on rules had to wait. Then a messenger escorted her back to the hotel.—Boston Herald.

NAVY THEN AND NOW

THE DAYS OF WOODEN SHIPS AND SMOOTH-BORES.

Just as Strongly as in These Days American Sailors Were Confident They Could Whip Any Other Nation.

Lieut. Commander E. A. Anderson, on recruiting duty, recently described his naval experiences to newspaper men of Cincinnati, and showed the great change which has been made within his experience. Few of the men in the navy to-day realize the great difference of every day conditions of naval life.

"With our old wooden ships and our smooth bore guns we felt we could lick the whole world when I entered the navy," said Lieut. Commander Anderson. "All the ships in our navy were wooden at that time with the exception of a few monitors. The European squadron consisted of the Penasco, Kearsarge and the Quinzebaug. Admiral Dewey was captain of the Pensacola at that time. It makes me feel like I am an old salt to call to mind the kind of ships and guns we had in those days. There were 25 men to a gun crew then, and it required all of them to haul the old smooth bores about."

"After they had been fired the men had to haul them back inside the ship to reload. Then they had to push them out again so the guns could be fired. It required about five minutes to pivot a gun from one side to the other when training it on some object, and I don't know how long it required to load one of them. Well, do I remember our broadside batteries of old nine-inch smooth bores. Why, when we got our first rifled guns, two six pounders, we again thought we could lick anything afloat. We used them for some time for firing salutes only. Our old ships were rotten. In those days we used large hemp ropes to counteract the recoil of the guns after they had been fired, but to day we have the most modern recoil apparatus known to naval experts."

"I can remember very well that when the navy department prepared to construct what was known as The White Squadron, consisting of the Chicago, the Atlanta and the Dolphin, now the secretary of the navy's yacht there was the greatest protest from some authorities because they were to be made of steel instead of wood. With our old vessels we thought we were fairly flying when we steamed four knots an hour on speed tests. Our engines were forced to their utmost capacity to make that speed, I guess for our decks danced up and down at a frightful rate. And our ammunition—it makes me laugh when I think of it. We used to fire away at targets with our old nine-inch smooth bores over what are now short ranges. We could hit the mark all right, and we were proud of it. But it is amusing now to think how our shells would turn and twist and roll while making their flight. They didn't look anything like our modern shells, which make their flight in the same position as that in which they lie in the gun, business end foremost. But those were good old days.—The Blue Jacket.

Dartmouth Tale Revived.

A while ago an item started the rounds of the college papers, beginning it appeared, with the Daily Illini, at the University of Illinois, and working like a soft nosed bullet both ways through the college publications. The story was about what was called a recent happening at Dartmouth. It detailed how the tax assessor of the district of Hanover, N. H., decided recently that the students of Dartmouth college ought to pay taxes. Thereupon the students decided that if they could be taxed they also could vote.

So at a town meeting the students, who far outnumbered the other residents, united in support of two projects. One was to have erected a schoolhouse 500 feet long and one foot wide and the other to have laid a boardwalk from Hanover to Lebanon about five miles away. Immediately thereafter the tax assessor made up his mind that the students need not be taxed.

"Well," said a Dartmouth '85 man when he was told about the anecdote, "that used to be a favorite story when I was in college. I wonder who started that up again."

Progress in China.

No feature of modern China is more remarkable than the growth of the native press. Dr. Morrison, who is perhaps the best authority on this subject, says that every city now of any importance has its newspaper, there being about 300 journals boldly conducted and publishing. Reuter telegrams and other messages from European agencies, so that tens of thousands of Chinese could now read every day of the progress and reforms of Europe, and of all the most stirring events in distant parts of the world. They even have their political cartoons, showing considerable ingenuity and invention.

LEVINSKY HAD GREAT SCHEME.

Bright Idea He Thought Meant Saving of Twenty-Five Dollars.

Levinaky, despairing of his life, made an appointment with a famous specialist. He was surprised to find 15 or 20 people in the waiting-room. After a few minutes he leaned over to a gentleman near him and whispered, "Say, mine friend, this must be a pretty good doctor, ain't he?" "One of the best," the gentleman told him.

Levinaky seemed to be worrying over something. "Well, say," he whispered again, "he must be pretty expensive, then, ain't he? Vat does he charge?" The stranger was annoyed by Levinaky's questions and answered rather shortly. "Fifty dollars for the first consultation and $25 for each visit thereafter."

"Mine Gott!" gasped Levinaky, "$50 tollars the first time and $25 tollars each time afterwards?" For several minutes he seemed to decide whether to go or to wait. "Und $25 each time afterwards," he kept muttering. Finally, just as he was called into the office, he was seized with a brilliant inspiration. He rushed toward the doctor with outstretched hands.

"Hello doctor," he said effusively. "Vell, here I am again.—Everybody's Magazine.

Tarantula Not So Bad.

The terrible tarantula is said to be more abused than abusive. It is not aggressive upon man nor is it often intrusive even, although every old miner and prospector has shaken one out of his boots or blankets in the morning, and always the size of a saucer. It avoids the hot sunshine and remains well down in its burrow under the ground. About sundown it sallies forth and lies in waiting just below the opening of the burrow. It assumes this position whether it desires food or wishes only to get a bit of fresh air. It does not travel about in quest of food, even when hungry, but remains quietly in the attitude described often for hours at a time. At the near approach of a caterpillar grasshopper, beetle or almost any creature of like size other than its enemy, the wasp, it rushes out and seizes it, but rarely goes farther than a few inches from the opening. One fair sized insect a week is sufficient to satisfy its hunger because of its inactive existence, while it can live several months without food, even when most active, provided it has water. In autumn the spider closes the entrance with a crudely spun web. It is then ready to pass the winter in a semilethargic state, partaking of no food. In the spring it digs its way out.

A Jefferson Davis Speech.

On August 2, 1870, a party of young men engaged a band and serenaded Jefferson Davis. After the band had played "Dixie" and "My Maryland," Mr. Davis spoke these words:

"My friends, I thank you for this cordial greeting. Thrown like a wave on a restive ocean, it's something to receive this good old Virginia welcome. As long as my heart continues to beat it must be still responsive to the warm and cordial feeling of Virginians, which I have experienced in some of the contingencies of my life. This manifestation of your good feeling towards me comes from your generosity, and not from any merit of my own. May God in his infinite mercy preserve you from every ill, and may your prosperity and happiness be as wide as your borders—may your homes be peaceful, the earnest prayer of one who has no more to say to you on this occasion."—Eugene L. Didier in Spare Moments.

Durability of Glass.

It does not seem odd to find inscriptions written ages ago still visible on the Tower of London, or on the steeples of some cathedrals, but one would hardly look on a fragile panel of glass in a common window for characters 300 years old.

A notable case in point is that of the old house in London wherein the notorious Jack Sheppard once lived as a carpenter's apprentice. One of the window panes still bears an inscription cut in it by a glazier's diamond, recording the name and address of a man who preceded Jack's master in that house.

The inscription is "John Woolley Brand, Painter and Glazier, March 12, 1706."

That was nine years before the coming to the house of the famous Jack Sheppard, and over 300 years ago.—Sunday Magazine.

Not a Bad Idea.

"Did you write to Phippany's," said Mrs. Nuvvee Reese "for samples of all the latest style visiting cards?" "Yes, madam," replied the secretary. "About 100 came—all sorts and sizes." "What names were on them?" Mrs. Nuvvee Reese inquired eagerly. "The very first families of the city, madam."

The matron smiled contentedly. "Then dump 'em all," she said, "in the gold card receiver on the parlor table."

Severely Practical.

"Oh, promise me that some day you and I will take our love together to that sky—" sang one of the boarders in our boarding house, sentimentally Sunday evening in the parlor. "You'll have to buy an airship, Mr. Pipes, won't you?" asked little Tommie Smith in all seriousness.

The Season's Modes

COSTUMES FOR EARLY SPRING

One of the late and sensible Parisian ideas in tailored costumes is the attaching by the tailor of a narrow belt matching the skirt to the skirt itself. Sometimes these are stitched all the way around, closing where the skirt closes under a pointed end or other suitable termination, and sometimes but more rarely they are fastened on one side only so that the belt may be closed in the front or at the side, while the skirt's opening is in the back. This fashion was in vogue there a year or so ago, and many women adhered to it, or their tailors did, but others who would have looked far better with it wear in for belts and girdles of all sorts. Now, however, that Parisians are having the belt of the material on their smartest street costumes, one will be sure to see it here.

The narrow belt of the gown material is far more becoming to the short waisted or large-waisted person than the fancy belt, whether of leather, ribbon, belting, or any of the numerous varieties that are always wider and far more clumsy. The narrow belt is so much more becoming to the slender figure, and few are so long-waisted that they need object to the narrow waistband. However, it is easy to have the belt made an inch wider, and that makes a very considerable difference in one's apparent length of waist. Of course, the extremely short waisted person that is short waisted in proportion to her height and width, should eschew any sort of girdle so far as possible, and the ideal finish is no visible belt, but the skirt finished so it will not stretch, and a narrow cord or straight fold not over an eighth of an inch wide at the top, this being straight. This is almost never seen, so few women have the originality and common sense to choose what is suitable.

Short sleeves are still to obtain considerable favor. On walking dresses I find this a great pity, for the short sleeves in coats have my distinct and definite hatred. I realize that they spoil the outline of the figure, that they are as indiscriminately worn by the woman who has an ill-shaped arm as by the woman who has the well-shaped arm, while I am content to gloss over the fact that long gloves are among the involved essential extravagances. I am by no means satisfied that the short sleeve has any becoming virtue to commend it.

Greek outlines are being revived, including embroidered tunics, the draped sleeve for evening wear, and the crossed and folded bodice. The empire style continues meanwhile—and I hope much longer—to enjoy generous patronage, and of the making of silver and golden trimmings duly burnished for the most part there is no end.

Many of the new hats are draped with veils of plain Russian net innocent of border or binding, and these thrown back to form a frame for the hair, must be voted infinitely attractive. Plain cloth puts a better face on it than ever, and undoubtedly by merit retains its first position, though many shades of dull yellow and dull green are endeavoring to obtain recognition, and should not be encouraged, for they do not possess the supreme attractiveness of becomingness. A costume for immediate wear which has considerable charm is in dull blue with a long coat, cut into panels under each arm and down the center of the back, and outlined with an embroidery of dull silver cord, the panels being held together with straps of the silver. This coat, which is of full three-quarter length, hangs quite straight from the shoulders, and is turned back in front with small white silk revers traced with silver, the sleeves terminating just below the elbow and being of the modified bell shape; the skirt is quite plain and short, its only adornment being a very narrow trimming of the dull silver cord about three inches from the hem.

The skirts are growing narrower. The slim long outline is essential to the success of the newest cloth gown, and the skirt which touches the ground at the back is to enjoy as much popularity as the straight round skirt.

The embroidered waistcoat is to have considerable influence on the spring costumes, light cloth and light watered silk will be called to its service, and its most attractive shape will be that which we associate with the cavalier coat and the lace cravat and the sleeve ruffle. Waistcoats are also made of fanciful brocade, and some of tapestry are novel, while the Oriental embroideries are not banished from recognition, although they have occupied the pedestal of popular favor for some four seasons.

The corset skirt looks extremely well cut in very fine cloth or serge, and obviates any possible untidiness round the waist, or necessity for belt or band. As an admirable suggestion for a costume I quote a traveling friend of mine who proposes to buy for herself a corset skirt of fine black cloth, the hem showing a Grecian design in black braid, with a white lawn skirt with lace-edged lawn frills from neck to bust, and putting finishing touches to the long sleeves. The long waistcoat has a seam round the waist, and is made of tapestry brocade, the coat also being cut straight, with a seam round the waist, and braided down on either side with small pendant ornaments. The lining of this coat is to be of the same brocade as the waistcoat and the hat is to be of black, the shape turning up slightly in front with a mass of eagle's feathers at one side, the crown encircled with a plaited galon of dull silver interwoven with black and tasseled with silver.
